From the Desk of Deacon Matt

Throughout Holy Week and in this Sunday's Gospel we may get the impression that the disciples were fearful of fellow Jews, and naturally we might presume that even within the Jewish culture there was a division of Jewish believers. If we were to take these words literally, we would almost imagine that was anti-Semitism between Jewish brethren. This, my sisters and brothers is terribly unfortunate. Israel, during the time of Jesus, was comprised of several regions that although they had identified as being Jewish, their cultural norms were very different. There were Jews from Judea, which were mainly located in Northern Israel including Jerusalem, and Galilee, where Jesus and His disciples were from. There are other regions including Samaria as well. Each had their own dialect, and their cultural norms. Much like in the United States, there is the North and the South with varying dialects and cultural norms. I come from New York and sound like a New Yorker. Lisa comes from Chicago and sounds Chicagoian. But we are both Americans from the United States. When the disciples are in the Upper room, and are fearful, it isn't because they are Jews, it is because they came from Galilee, considered by Judeans as a back water region. Imagine how it was for us in the 1960's to witness the racism and fearfulness of those in our own country. So, the term Jew is meant to describe those from a particular region, Judea, and not a particular religion. Jesus's followers, Galileans, were indeed frightened of the Judeans. And that is why the Holy Spirit fortifies them in their time of fear. Nearly two thousand years later we are perhaps feeling isolated and fearful for many of the same reasons that the disciples did, but we are all fortified with the gifts of the Holy Spirit to combat our isolation and fear. Our readings challenge us to recognize the risen Lord's presence. In Acts, people from all around Jerusalem recognize the Lord's healing powers working through Peter, the disciple he left as head of the early church. John, the author of Revelation, recognizes the Lord in his visions. Thomas only recognizes the risen Lord when he sees him in the flesh, but then believes at once. Let us marvel at the strong faith of these early Christians. Perhaps we may all be like Thomas, but that's okay, we have each other to see the Risen Lord. We have no reason to fear, I have no reason to fear, I see Jesus in all of you. Let us have the strong faith of the early Christians.

Shalom Shalom
